Performance

Based on transaction prices, the fund's return was 0.87%.

Robeco BP US Large Cap Equities outpaced the Russell 1000 Value Index with stock selection driving relative returns. Stock selection was particularly strong in the sectors of materials and industrials. Within materials, metal & mining businesses Kinross Gold and Newmont performed strongly, as well as construction products company CRH Plc following strong 2025Q2 earnings and the launch of a new share buyback program. In industrials, Uber, C.H. Robinson Worldwide, United Airlines and United Rentals were the winners. Avoiding machinery businesses Deere and Caterpillar also helped. An area of weakness to stock picking came in the financials sector, with Fidelity National Information Services and LPL Financial being the largest detractors of the month. Sector allocation was mixed, with the largest contribution coming from the fund's overweight in materials, and the largest detractor coming from having overweight exposure to information technology and underweight exposure to healthcare.

Market development

US equity markets moved higher in the quieter holiday month of August, with the core S&P 500 Index higher by just over 2%. Value equities outperformed both core and growth equities across the market cap spectrum, led by small caps which outperformed mid and large caps in the month, with small-cap value returning 8.43%, as measured by the Russell 2000 Value Index.

Expectation of fund manager

Despite all the policy shifts coming out of Washington this year, with uncertainty surrounding tariffs and trade, the markets have held up relatively well. As it stands, tariffs will probably have an inflationary impact on interest rates going forward. So far, we haven't seen any expectations for earnings to come down, so if earnings growth is stable and interest rates don't get away from us, then the markets should perform reasonably well through the rest of the year. As always, we remain focused on selecting companies from the bottom-up that reflect Boston Partners' three-circle characteristics – attractive valuations, solid business fundamentals, and identifiable catalysts.

Top 10 largest positions

Kinross Gold and American Express entered the top ten in August, replacing AbbVie and LPL Financial.
