All figures in EUR. Data end of August 2025. If the currency in which the past performance is displayed differs from the currency of the country in which you reside, then you should be aware that due to exchange rate fluctuations the performance shown may increase or decrease if converted into your local currency. Performance since inception is as of the first full month. Periods shorter than one year are not annualized. Returns gross of fees, based on gross asset value. Values and returns indicated here are before cost; the performance data does not take account of the commissions and costs incurred on the issue and redemption of units. These have a negative effect on the returns shown.

Market developments

In contrast to pre-summer angst, global equity markets still continued to march on, even though August more moderately so (+0.3% in EUR; +2.6% in USD). The "sell America" trade seems long gone by now as strong earnings momentum continued to drive the AI steam train, with dovish Fed expectations further running the show in the US. Markets in Europe were mixed, though, with the periphery outperforming core Europe, notably France where political instability is back on the radar, but also some fatigue on German stimulus. With equities in party mode and tight credit spreads are hardly the circumstances requiring easing monetary policy, yet the Fed might be prepared to start cutting rates, a scenario investors seem all-in on. Increased short-termism remains the market operating fabric with any concerns brushed away quickly. Despite the rotation into rate sensitive laggards and lower quality echelons of the market, we did manage to keep pace with the market. We do expect a lively autumn lies ahead, but perhaps playing a different tune this time.

PORTFOLIO MANAGER'S UPDATE AUGUST 2025

Marketing material for professional investors, not for onward distribution

Portfolio Manager

Last month's performance

In August, our strategy had a slightly negative absolute return, against a flattish benchmark (-0.5% versus +0.2%, respectively). Sector-wise, the main positive contributors proved to be Energy and Communication Services, while Industrials and Consumer Staples lagged.

In terms of stock selection, Alphabet contributed best to performance. It is increasingly confident AI can act as a tailwind for its Search business rather than a threat, visible in overall query growth and user growth in its AI Overviews and Gemini app. Meanwhile, other areas such as YouTube and Google Cloud (GCP) continue to grow strongly as well. Consequently, capex spend will move even higher in the coming years, but all reinvested at high returns as well.

Building insulation company TopBuild enjoyed a strong month, pushed higher on rate cut hopes, which should arguably help the US housing market. Even though TopBuild continues to see headwinds in single- and multi-family households, its commercial and industrial end-market is rebounding. Growth is still anemic, but investors are buying into the assumption it should turn up from here.

Lastly, Resona rebounded on better-than-expected earnings results, mainly due to sharply rising net interest income given an increase in the BoJ deposit interest. Also better domestic loan profits and dividends from subsidiaries helped the bottom line. Further unwinding of strategic cross-holdings should act as tailwinds too.

On the flipside, Sprouts Farmers Market detracted from performance, although this seemed more to be a function of our large active weight and the general pummeling of defensive stocks in a cyclically- and Tech-led market rally. In fact, Sprouts reported good results with strong sales momentum holding steady as its loyalty programs, eCommerce strategy and new stores openings are performing as planned.

Data and risk analytics company RELX also detracted in August, mainly on a warning put out by Gartner on a slowdown in research output growth, potentially caused by AI. However, in contrast to many software and IT services companies where AI indeed might pose a threat, RELX is already seeing tailwinds from AI. Its Legal and journals business, in particular, where accuracy and fidelity of data are crucial, show accelerating growth from its AI initiatives.

Finally, Siemens Energy also pulled back from recent highs, even though there are no specific points of concern. After a positive preliminary update in July, actual results did not again surprise, hence there was some profit taking after a very strong run year-to-date. We still see Siemens Energy as one of the best plays on the electrification theme, with consensus expectations still too low in the outer years.

Portfolio construction

The strategy selects global companies whose economic activities can actively mitigate climate change and its impacts. The focus is primarily on developed markets and our investment process is based on bottom-up stock selection. We choose stocks based on high potential free cash flow (FCF) generation, combined with a solid long-term track record for ROIC (return on invested capital). We integrate the most material ESG factors into our fundamental company analysis and we combine fundamental and valuation discipline with strict risk management. In order to optimize risk in a concentrated portfolio, we take positions in companies and scale them according to our conviction level and their contribution to the portfolio's total risk exposure. In other words, the highest-conviction names will be allocated the highest share of our risk budget. This optimizes risk control by taking into account the correlation of the holdings and helps avoid unintended biases in a concentrated portfolio.

The companies shown are for illustrative purposes only in order to demonstrate the investment strategy on the date stated. The companies are not necessarily held by a strategy/fund. No inference can be made on the future development of the company.

Our number one active position remains Sprouts Farmers Market, a food grocery chain offering fresh, natural and organic food items catering to consumers' growing interest in health and environmentally conscious dietary intake. Our second largest active position is Alphabet, as we believe that with its leading positions in Search, Cloud and the investments into its AI platform, Alphabet has a long runway for growth with attractive returns. To us, Alphabet looks undervalued and is currently not treated as an AI winner, which we think is unjustified. BYD Corp is third second-largest active position and is the world's largest EV car maker. We like BYD's vertical integration model as it offers greater leeway in expanding margins, especially as the automotive market gradually moves from growing the pie to dividing the existing one. Mix improvement, favorable brand image and overseas expansion are all drivers for further growth.

Portfolio changes

In August, we added Chinese battery maker CATL to the portfolio. Being the global battery champion, CATL sits in-between a manufacturing and technology company, constantly developing new battery technologies to boost market share and returns higher. Its 2nd generation sodium battery and investments into anode-free and solid-state batteries as the next frontier will propel growth for years to come. We trimmed positions in Linde, Sprouts Farmers Market and BYD to purchase CATL.

This is the current overview as of the date stated above and not a guarantee of future developments. It should not be assumed that any investments in sectors or regions identified were or will be profitable.

We choose to take a broad approach instead of building a narrow thematic portfolio. As we believe all sectors have a role to play in the transition to net zero, the strategy invests both in companies that facilitate the transition and companies that will need to transition themselves.

Outlook

The recent passing of the OBBB marked a clearing event, for renewables specifically, effectively leaving the most relevant tax incentives untouched. This has woken up renewables investors from the dead, triggering renewed interest in the space. In theory, Trump could issue another executive order to review the IRS's stance, but since the latter is bound by law, Congress is in charge and not the executive branch. In other words, it seems very unlikely (finally!) that major overhauls will happen from here. In order to catalyze "energy abundance" and feed the power-hungry AI beast, it critically comes down to factors such as power density, economics and speed of dispatch. Even though we will never see Staples-like low volatility in the climate space, the outlook from here seems highly favorable.
